STEVE JOBS

LEADERSHIP PRESENTATION

GROUP 2

THE RETURN OF STEVE JOBS - LEADER OR TYRANT?

Apple on the verge of bankruptcy in 1997, Steve Jobs returned for an important meeting.

In June of 1997, the magazine Wired's front cover was signaling that Apple was very close to failing

APPLE ON THE VERGE OF COLLAPSE

Apple is experiencing a severe financial crisis, with fragmented products and a loss of direction.
The Board of Directors needs a decisive solution.

Steve Jobs returns as an advisor but must persuade the Board to give him back leadership.

APPLE IS NOT DYING FROM A LACK OF MONEY, APPLE IS DYING FROM A LACK OF VISION

FOCUS ON WHAT MATTERS MOST, ELIMINATE UNNECESSARY WORK

JOBS DRAWS A DIAGRAM OF 4 CORE PRODUCTS

JOBS CAN SAVE APPLE, BUT HOW?

The Board questions finances: How to revive Apple?

- Reduce products from 15 to 4
- Collaborate with Microsoft
- Customer Focus

> We don't need to please everyone, just create products that customers will love at first sight.

GENIUS OR DICTATORIAL LEADER?

If we ask a million people, they will describe a phone that looks like a brick. I don't follow the crowd, I precede them.

Jobs is too harsh, demands extreme perfection, and exhausts employees.

JOHN SCULLEY

Is an authoritarian style suitable for a company that needs innovation and collaboration?

INVESTOR B

GREATNESS ISN'T BUILT ON COMFORT

> I don't seek consensus; I create what people don't yet know they need.

Leadership requires making tough choices, even if they go against the majority.

STEVE JOBS' LEADERSHIP STYLE

Pressure excellent results

Autocratic Leadership

Leadership styles ⟷ Situation variables

Relationship between styles and situation

Fiedler's Contingency Model

COULD APPLE SUCCEED WITHOUT JOBS?

In times of crisis, Apple needs a decisive leader, not someone who excels at compromise.

INVESTOR A

But a company cannot rely solely on one individual; it needs a sustainable culture

INVESTOR B

Without Jobs, Apple might not even exist for us to be having this debate.

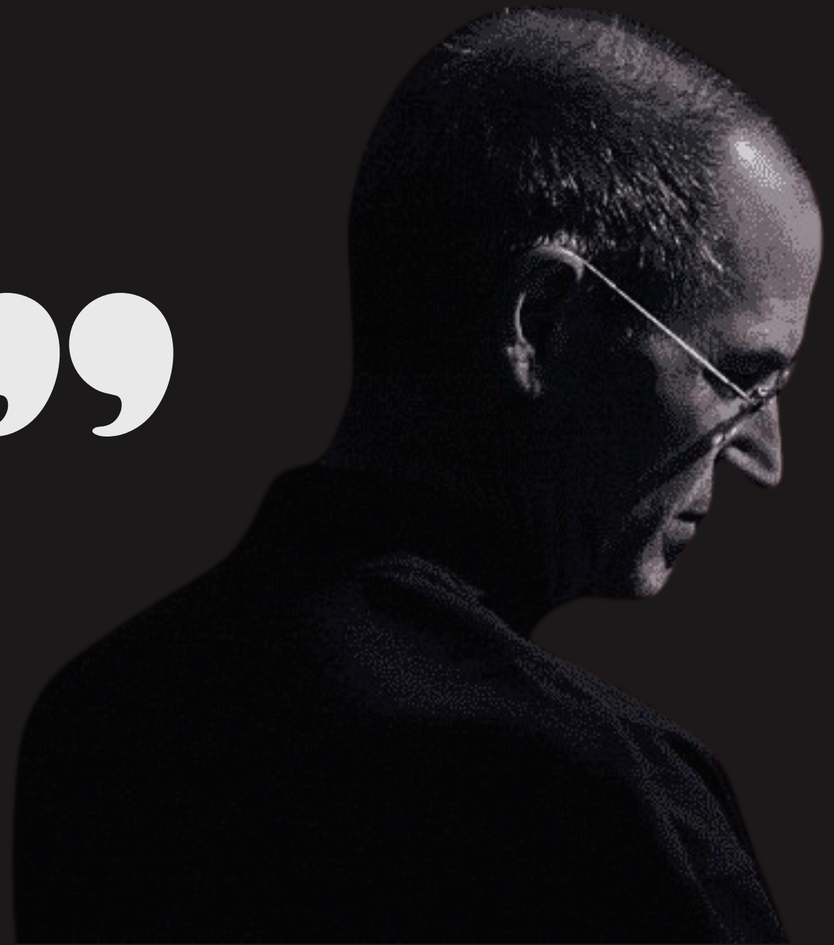

INVESTOR C

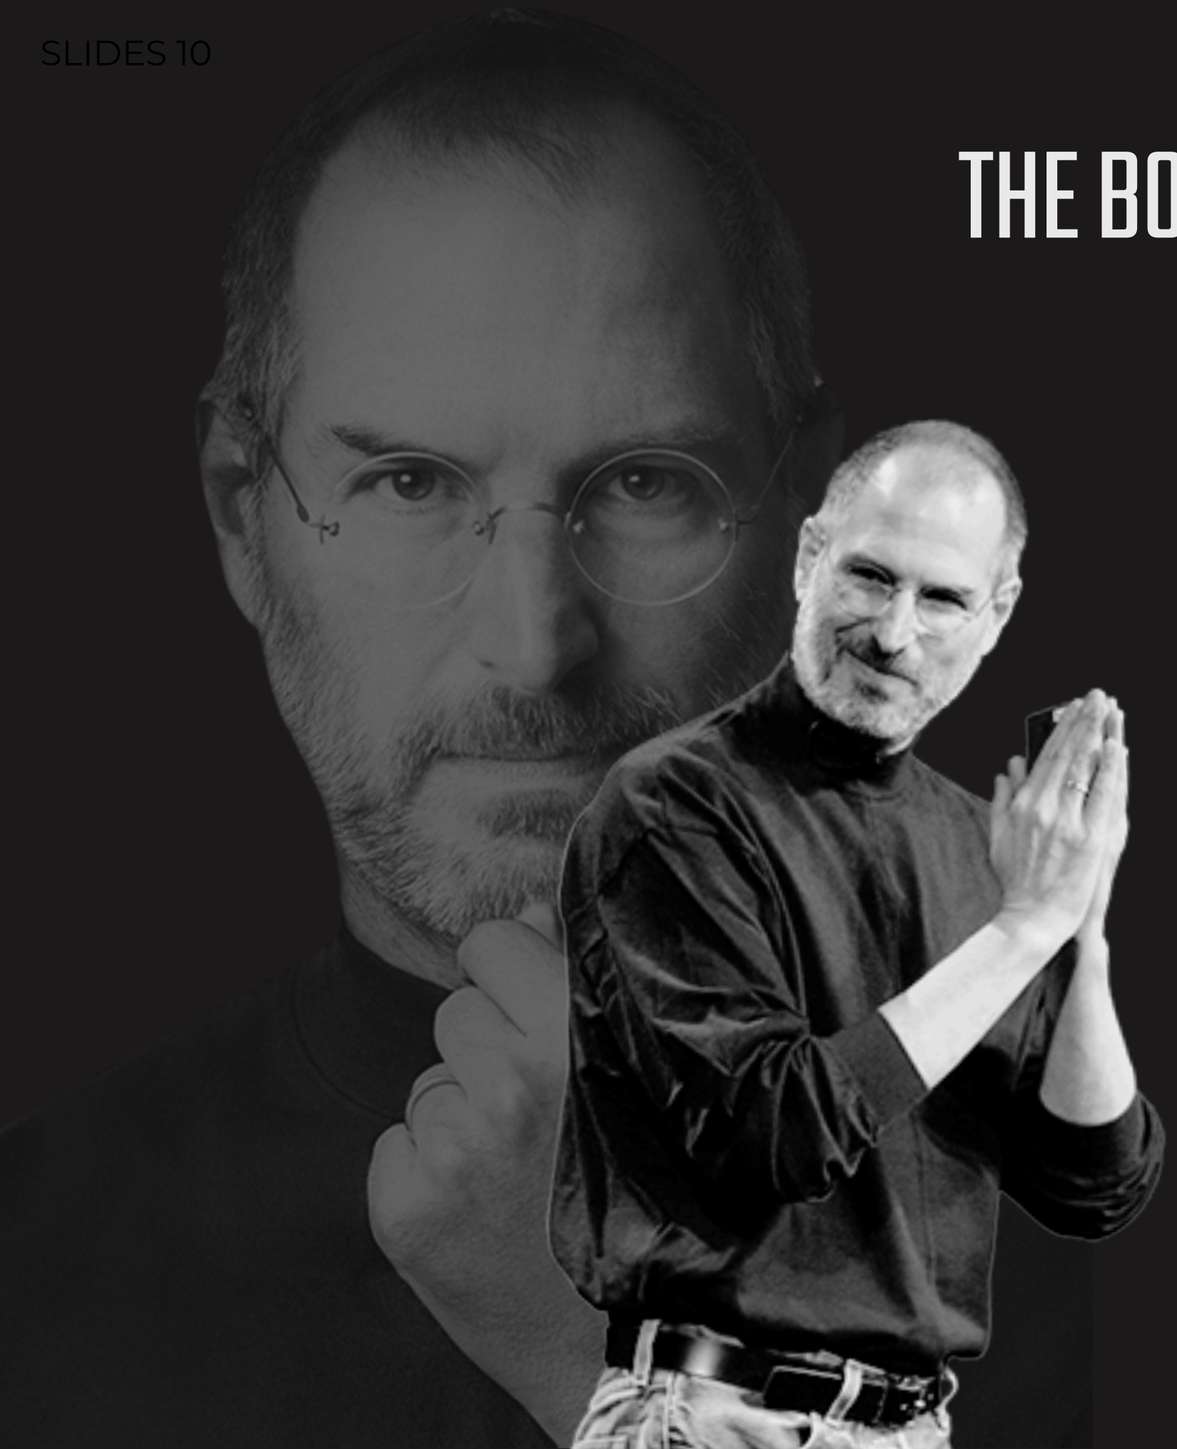

SAFETY OR GREATNESS?

Steve Jobs forced us to choose between safety and greatness. This decision cannot be taken lightly.

- The Chairman -

THE BOARD'S DECISION CHANGED THE WORLD

Steve Jobs won.

He led Apple from the brink of failure to success with the iMac, iPod, and iPhone
